

THE LINDENS: The Linden trees on this pretty riverside lot give Linden House its name. On a sunny day the house basks in the mellow autumn glow. On a windy day it enjoys the gulls that wheel overhead. Every day the family of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Ross enjoy their new home.

Bride Elect Is Honored At Bridge

In honor of her niece, Miss Rosemary McWilliams, a bride-elect of November 9, Miss Myrtle Spink, Debary apts., entertained at bridge Saturday afternoon.

The tea table was arranged with a centre of white chrysanthemums and lighted with white candles. Mrs. John Bracken and Mrs. Harry C. McWilliams presided.

IN honor of Miss Marjorie Marr, whose marriage to Lieut, J. Donovan Cheatley will be an event of next week. Mrs. Edward Manning entertained at luncheon Saturday at the Manitoba club. Bronze chrysanthemums formed the centre piece for the table.

MRS. D. Boyce Sprague, Anvers apts., entertained informally at the tea hour Saturday afternoon. The tea table, arranged with autumn bloom, was presided over by Mrs. William Robinson.

The christening of the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Wilkes took place Sunday at Holty Trinity church. Rev. C. Carruthers officiated. The baby received the name of Sheila Diane. Mr. and Mrs. E. Graham and Miss G. Wilkes were the godparents.

Mrs. A. W. Fordham Entertains At Tea

To Honor Her Sister In honor of her sister, Miss Mar-jorie Marr, a bride-to-be of next week, Mrs. A. W. Fordham enter-tained at tea Friday afternoon.

tained at tea Friday afternoon.
The table was decked with pink roses and lighted by cream tapers.
Presiding were: Mrs. J. G Cheatley, Mrs. M. Davidson, Mrs. J. W.
Pozer, Mrs. William McAllister,
Mrs. J. Gresham and Mrs. H. W.
Hook, The assistants included Mrs.
Keith Palmer, Mrs. John Jamieson, Mrs. Ross Marr, Mrs. Aice
Price, Misses Bernadette Murphy and Bernice McAllister. and Bernice McAllister.

MRS. J. P. Molloy has returned from Regina, where she was the guest for two weeks of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Gerein.

Mrs. Forrest Rogers, of Vancouver, entertained informally at couver, entertained informally at tea Monday when Mrs. Maurice Gravel, of Winnipeg, and Mrs. Robert Driscoll, who has come from Seattle to reside in Vancouver, were guests of honor.

MRS. A. Butler, Melbourne ave.

IN THE INGLENOOK: Each side of this big fireplace are built-in seats that make it an inglenook after the English style. Overhead are great beams. The picture over the mantel is a Spanish watercolor and beneath the picture is a Dresden group-a lady and gentleman, playing a guitar and a flute to each other. Miss Margo Ross leans on the corner beside the bowl of bittersweet. Mrs. W. J. Ross sits in a Windsor chair and knits. The little seven-year-old twins, Geoffrey, left, and Anthony, right, who have come from England to be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ross for the duration of the war, are already quite at home, as you see. Their home is in Chelmsford, Essex.

MRS. E. Taylor will entertain Miss Shirley Wright honor of Miss Nan Morton a Is Guest Of Honor November bride-elect.

Mill entertain at a kitchen shower, Tuesday evening, in honor of Miss Nan Morton, a bride-elect.

Mrs. Louis Bawlf and Mrs. Charles Martin, of Winnipeg, have returned to Vancouver from Victoria, where they were guests of Will be at home Wednesday evening on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Collard, and Miss Mrs. At Delightful Tea

Mrs. Louis Bawlf and Mrs. E. Nelson Green entertained at tea Saturday in honor of Miss Shirley Wright, whose marriage to toria, where they were guests of toria, where they were guests of toria, where they were guests of their 25th wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Collard, and Miss Patricia Collard, who have spent the last few weeks in Winnipeg, will return to Ottawa, Sunday, November 10.

At Delightful Tea

Mrs. E. Nelson Green entertained the table was centred with birtiday of her little son, David.

Mrs. Endels Mrs. E. Nelson Green entertained the table with honor of Miss Margaret Helen Ball to Mr. Shirley Wright, whose marriage to Wistors attending the marriage of Miss Margaret Helen Ball to Mr. James Blanchard Gass, which was an event of Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Collard, and Miss Patricia Collard, who have spent the last few weeks in Winnipeg, will return to Ottawa, Sunday, November 10.

MRS. Clarence H. Smith, Gren-fell Blvd., entertained at a children's party Saturday after-noon on the occasion of the fifth Hugo.

Gulls Wheel Above Linden House Overlooking The Red River From Kildonan Drive In "The Dell"

By LILLIAN GIBBONS

HIGH on a windy promon-tory overlooking the Red River from the East Kildonan side is Linden House, a pleasant stone abode with weathered gables. High over head wheel the gulls, screeching and dip-ping. The house gets its name from the linden trees on the well-wooded lot. This on the well-wooded lot. This last year it has been the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Ross. Built by David Edward Williams in 1910, The Lin-dens, as it was then called, was designed carefully on English lines. "I remember hearing my husband say his father stood with the builders to see they mixed the big stones with the little to give it the rough appearance he wanted," says Mrs. Gerald Williams. Dr. Gerald Williams, now over-seas, is a son of the builder. "I remember the wonderful Christmas parties they used to have, the six children and all the family friends stand-ing around the billiard table to open their presents."

It Stands in "The Dell" That is getting ahead of Time Out of Mind tale.

The fire crackles and snaps, drawing your attention to the beaded firescreen with its dripping red fuchsias worked in needlepoint by Mr. Ross' mother "when she was a girl." There is needlepoint everywhere, done by mothers and grandmothers, and by Mrs. Ross herself. She was doing a square in rich, dark colors for a tip top table; there was a unicorn in petitpoint in the middle. Over the mantel hung a painting of Fleet St., London, with the great dome of St. Paul's looming at the top of Ludgate Hill. An old manogany piano had been changed into a desk; the back now held rose and gold Rockingham china behind glass fronted cup-

Linden House is in "the dell," more formally known as Kildonan Drive, the wind-ing road that skirts the river from the foot of Hazeldell

In summer it must be quite hidden; now, with the leaves down, its brown back is partly visible from the dell drive. The fine open front has a red brick terrace, laid has a red brick terrace, laid in honeycomb pattern, supported by four square stone pillars. French doors look into the great beamed reception hall. "I come out at night and enjoy looking in at the fire," said Mrs. Ross, who is the kind of person who would live in such a house.

When you enter by the front door, to the left of these French doors, you are in the big square room with the great rafters and the open brick hearth. A rich blue Chinese Mongolian rug stretches itself luxuriously. The fire crackles and snaps.

The dining-room down the hall had Adam chairs and a square table. The lowboy with the fretwork front held a proud Henry VIII and a timid Anne Bolyn, arm in arm, in china. Over the sideboard was a picture of two swans embroidered in wool against a needlepoint pond "done by my mother when she was at the Ursuline convent in Quebec," said Mrs. Ross. Mrs. Ross.

The bay window had a tiled window seat crowded with potted plants dressed in fuchsia colored frilled paper petticoats. Even the last of the garden asters had been potted and brought in potted and brought in. The long room to the right, once the billiard room, is now the drawing-room, with ing and an inglenook fireside. the seast fit in either side of the fire, beneath the curved beam that hems off this end of the room. A Spanish oil of two lovers in the street of two lovers in the street hung above the mantel. On the mantel were Chelsea china vases studded with little flower heads, and a pretty piece of Dresden—a farthingaled lady with a mandolin playing a duet with her flute lover.

The Sofa From New Orleans

Two sofas were among the pretty pieces. "One is better than the other and came from New Orleans," said Mrs. Ross. On the floor at each end of the one with the graceful carved back was a tiny needlepointed stool. a the gracetul carved back was a tiny needlepointed stool, a low round thing, that tempts the seven-year-old English twins, Geoffrey and Anthony Curtis, who are here for the duration, to sit one each end with their feet upon the flowers.

with their feet upon the flowers.

One corner held a Chippendale wall corner cupboard of rosewood. Opposite was a standing corner cupboard filled with tin types and daguerrectypes folded with backs to the light to prevent them from fading away any further. The prevent them from fading away any further. The Hepplewhite chair with the shield back, that stood beside it, had a needlepoint seat with an old rose background made by Mrs. Ross to match the old rose of the wall between the dark panelling. tween the dark-panelling.
An old - fashioned sewing table had a drop basket of rose damask. The floors were sprinkled with beautiful Persians.

But up the panelled stairs

the greatest treasures were-waiting. A giant four-poster leaped out, dimming every-thing else. Without canopy or tester, it looked bigger than ever, its great round mahogany posts climbing up to the ceiling. They were carved deeply with oak leaves and acorns in cups. "Yes, it came from New Orleans too and they told us leaves and acorns in cups.

"Yes, it came from New Orleans too and they told us
when we bought it that it came from an old plantation." It brought back Gone
With the Wind with a rush;
the scene where Scarlett rested with the girls at the Wilkes' party at Twelve Oaks.

Oaks.
The dressing table was a curious French piece—rose, wood with little heads springing from the bends of the legs.

All over the floor were hooked rugs Mrs. Ross made "because the bed demanded them." The one at the threshold had a house with smoke coming from the chimney. coming from the chimney,

Another bedroom han an-other great bed, so high it "should have steps but we "should have steps but we just leap in . . . we were in a shop in Nassau, The Bahamas, looking for shells when Mr. Ross spied something dark piled up near the ceiling. 'Is it a bed?' he asked. The man said yes, and he guessed it had been up there 50 years. It had to be washed before we could see what wood it was made of." Your hands went out to feel the satiny smoothness of the the satiny smoothness of the great twisted mahogany

"It was as broad as it is long when we bought it. I had to have it cut down be-fore we could get anything to fit and the springs we had made, anyway. There was a trundle bed under it, and I'm trundle bed under it, and I'm sorry we didn't get it too. I think that's one reason it's so high—to shove the trundle bed out of the way underneath it in the daytime." Under the bed and extending to the wainscot was a giant oval braided rug, done in pale yellow and faded blues, that made the nicture comthat made the picture com-

MRS. F. H. Brooks, Wolseley ave., will be a hostess of Monday evening, entertaining in honor of Miss Nan Morton, whose marriage will be an event of late November.

Mrs. George Skinner will return during the weekend from a two weeks holiday in Regina.

MISS Betty Meindl will entertain at luncheon at the Manitoba club Tuesday afternoon in honor of on Wellington Crescent, Friday of afternoon, in honor of Miss Mary Jean Rutledge, whose marriage to Ottawa, have taken up residence in Winnipeg for the winter.

Dr. P. W. Head, Fort Chipewyan, Alta., formerly of Birtle, Man., and his daughter. Miss Jones Head weeks holiday in Regina.

MRS. J. R. Colby and Miss JacoRegina where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Olson.

In Winnipeg for the winter.

Iteutr.-Col. and Mrs. Percy Pennefather have arrived from Prince Albert to spend a short time with their daughter, Mrs. D. B. Emeno, Oxford st.

Dr. P. W. Head, Fort Chipewyan, Alta., formerly of Birtle, Man., and his daughter, Miss Joyce Head, have left for Vancouver where short time with their daughter, Mrs. Samuel John Seney will take place November 9.

PLANTATION BED: This great mahogany four-poster, carved with oak leaves and acorns, was bought in New Orleans and came originally from one of the great plantations of the South. Miss Ross is straightening the crocheted spread. Through the window is the pretty view of the river and the opposite bank.